NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Sino-Russian War Clouds Denser Over Manchuria—Senate Tariff Bill.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

WAR between China and Soviet Russia became increasingly probable during the week, and China for the world knows that if it did come, Russia alone should be blamed. Several weeks ago it was said in these columns that the basis of the Manchurian trouble was the incurable itch of the Russians to sovietize the rest of the world, and this fact is emphasized in identical communications delivered by China's envoys to the governments of all nations signatory to the Kellogg pact. The note handed Secretary of State Stimson by Minister Wu makes the flat charge that the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics has been plotting to overthrow the Chinese government and says the latter has the documents to prove this accusation.

Since 1927, the Chinese government declares, Russia has been conducting communistic propaganda in China, using the funds of the Chinese Eastern railway to finance these activities. These involved, it is charged, not only the overthrow of the Chinese government but the destruction of China's political and economic system. These activities, it is added, have progressed to a point where the safety of China is endangered. China also charges Russia with sponsoring a policy of wholesale assassinations, one of the purposes of which was to bring about a world wide revolution.

In the present crisis on the Manchurian frontier Russia, the Chinese say, has been using warlike threats involving not only things but the operation of military airplanes over Chinese territory. China, says the communication, still hopes for peace. It adds that "should such acts of provocation on the part of the Soviet government result in unavoidable clashes arising out of China's determination to defend her own rights the responsibility for disturbing the peace of the world must entirely rest with the Soviet government."

During the week there were repeated clashes between Chinese and Russian troops which in one or two instances amounted to real battles. One side accused the other of invasion, but the dispatches indicated that the Soviet forces were the more aggressive in making border raids. The Nanking government continued to hurry heavy reinforcements to the Manchurian frontier, and recent cablegrams from Tokyo said Russian troops had already completed mobilization and were soon to march on Harbin, the Manchurian railroad center. It was asserted this advance was to be a "punitive expedition" and that the Soviet government was determined to force China to comply with its demands regarding the Chinese Eastern railway but would make no formal declaration of war. Several trains on the Chinese Eastern were dynamited recently and Soviet agents were arrested charged with the crime.

REPUBLICAN members of the senate finance committee completed their draft of the revised tariff bill and made it public, and immediately started the battle of words that is certain to be continued with increasing fury when the senate begins consideration of the measure. Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of the committee, gave out figures as proof that the bill drawn up by his conferees represents a scaling down of duties from the house bill rates.

The comparisons showed equivalent ad valorem for the senate committee bill, the house bill and the present law. It was indicated the senate committee decreased rates in ten of the fifteen schedules from the duties of the house bill. In four schedules the revision was upward and in one there was no change.

The revised bill represents increases from the present law in twelve schedules, decreases in two and no change in one. The equivalent ad valorem were obtained by estimating revenues under the different measures and figuring what the total duties by schedules would represent in percentages of total values of imports.

It was estimated the customs revenue under the senate bill would amount to $905,408,400, as compared with $946,014,545 under the house bill and $516,512,930 under existing law. The figures showed a reduction in the agricultural schedule from the house bill, which was somewhat of a surprise.

The equivalent ad valorem of rates of the agricultural schedule in the senate committee bill was listed as 82.09 per cent as compared with 84.09 per cent in the house bill and 22.80 per cent in the present law.

The senate reconvened on August 10 with only about thirty members present and decided to hold perfunctory sessions twice a week until September 4, when the tariff debate would begin. The leaders planned passage of the measure about the middle of October. The house will reconvene September 23 and will mark time until the tariff bill is passed and ready for conference.

The Republican members of the senate finance committee approved a compromise provision for delaying two years the shift from a foreign to a domestic valuation basis, and settled several other administrative tariff controversies. Democrats of the committee made ready the numerous amendments to the bill which they will offer.

WHILE the representatives of the allied nations at The Hague were still disputing over the division of German reparations, with small prospect of immediate agreement, Dr. Gustav Stresemann, German foreign minister, informed them that, whether or not the Young plan was ratified by September 1, Germany could pay, beginning on that date, only the prop-tion called for by the scheme devised by Young and the other experts, namely, $267,000,000 a year.

Premier Aristide Briand of France replied that since the Young plan has not been adopted the German government must continue to carry out the treaty in force—the Dawes plan, which the reichstag had ratified.

Philip Snowden, British chancellor of the exchequer, said he considered the Germans must continue their payments according to the Dawes plan, which is the only recognized scheme for reparations.

British and Belgian troops were preparing to evacuate the second zone of the Rhineland, but Premier Briand said the evacuation of 60,000 French troops from the occupied territory hurriedly would be difficult since barracks were lacking in France to house them. It was understood that by January 1 the allied troops of occupation to the number of less than 20,000 would be out of all but the last zone, the Mayence bridgehead.

As for the split of reparations, London dispatches indicated that, Morgan and other American bankers might have a good deal to do with forcing a compromise.

The British press and, on the surface, the British government uphold Snowden in his refusal to accept a reduced share of the German payments, but it was said Prime Minister MacDonald was much impressed with the arguments of the financiers.

THE Graf Zeppelin completed its momentous voyage from Friedrichshafen to Tokyo in approximately 102 hours, circled over the Japanese capital and landed at the Kasumigaura flying field forty miles away. For several days the passengers and crew were feted by the wildly enthusiastic Japanese while the dirigible was being refueled and overhauled, the emperor himself taking a leading part in the entertainment of the visitors. As the big ship was being taken from the hangar for its start across the Pacific two struts were broken, and the take-off was delayed a day. When the Zeppelin soared into the air on its way to Los Angeles and Lakehurst.

Oscar Kaeser and Kurt Luescher, young and comparatively inexperienced Swiss aviators, took off from Portugal for a flight across the Atlantic ocean to the United States. By the end of the week it was believed they had paid the penalty of their rashness with their lives. From the time when they were seen above Terceira Island in the Azores all trace of them was lost.

Miss Marvel Crosson of San Diego, one of the contestants in the women's air derby from Santa Monica, Calif., to Cleveland, Ohio, met her death in western Arizona. Her body was found crushed against a boulder and a hundred yards away was the wreckage of her plane. Evidently she had leaped for her life but her parachute had failed to open.

Manner and Walker in the plane Spokane Sun God accomplished the feat of making a successful nonstop flight from Spokane to New York and return. The plane was in the air five full days and traversed 7,200 miles.

One of the British entries for the Schneider cup, a super-marine built by the Schneider company, was destroyed by a torpedo six miles off the coast of Weymouth, made in tests the fastest ever made by an airplane. The tremendous speed of 350 miles an hour was reached without an assisting wind.

Uncle Sam decided last week to make a loan of $100,000 to help promote the building up of the merchant marine. The administration notified the shipping board that it saw no objection to such a loan to the American Export Steamship corporation under the Jones-White act. The company wishes to build four vessels, and this work may prevent unemployment in the Camden yards of the New York Shipbuilding company. Secretary of the Navy Adams also signed a contract with the last named concern for the construction of one of the cruisers in the fifteen-cruiser program, the cost to be $10,000,000.

Relief for agriculturalists of several classes is actively under way through the federal farm board. That body approved loans aggregating more than $9,000,000 to be expended through co-operative groups for the stabilization of the California and fresh grape industries. The two principal groups concerned are the Sun-Maid Raisin Growers and the Federal Fruit Stabilization corporation. In addition to cash credits granted, the board, it was announced, will assist the Sun-Maid Raisin Growers in whatever way possible to insure the growers "the undisturbed use and control of the valuable Sun-Maid trademarks, the modern plant and the international sales organization" which the raisin growers of California have built up over a period of years.

It was announced by the board that it would probably make advances of from five to ten millions to supplement the assistance not given Southern co-operative associations.

GERHART JOHN DIEKEMA, a banker of Holland, Mich., and a former member of congress, has been appointed minister to Holland to succeed Richard M. Tobin of California, who resigned. Mr. Diekema, whose parents were born in Holland, speaks Dutch and has long been a student of the affairs of the Netherlands. Between 1901 and 1907 he was a member of the Spanish treaty claims commission.

NEW YORK has formally abandoned its plan to hold a world's fair in 1933, leaving that year to Chicago, whose Century of Progress exposition is fast being brought into concrete form. The New Yorkers decided to wait until 1938 and then show them in the way of a world's fair right.

The Chicago exposition has the endorsement of the National Research council, the backing of President Hoover and the national government and a united civic support.

Filipino Convinced of Devil in Automobile

Although the automobile is steadily gaining in popularity in the Philippines it encountered great fear and superstition on the part of the natives when first introduced. The first self-propelled vehicle was used in the colony in 1903 by an American, who was touring the islands. This car was viewed with awe by the inhabitants, being considered the contraption of a madman, and conservative residents suggested that the owner be deported as a dangerous character.

The second car made its appearance in 1907, destined for the wife of the mayor of Surigao. A devoted chauffeur was provided, and it is not known which created the greater stir, the vehicle or its driver. One day the owner found under the machine several bushmen, poking about and exploring the mysteries. Explanations revealed that the Filipinos had held a conference about the new vehicle that lacked visible means of locomotion and had concluded that the affair was nothing less than a devil wagon; therefore, partly out of kindness to the owner and partly to prevent the escape of the devil into the bush and into the villages, the "devil doctors" constituted themselves a committee to study this weird thing and to exterminate its concealed monster.

Age Not Determined by Number of Years Lived

I must confess that I have arrived at the time of life when I do not like to be asked how old I am. What in the dickens do the number of years matter?

Many of us oldsters are really as young as the birds in the air force. At least that's the way we feel. Youth is not a time or a state of mind. It is determined by how you think and how you feel.

Recently I met a young man of twenty-five who was full of life. His brain had become stale. He seemed to be frightened against his will. I am twelve years old, but I don't read that I am young.

A few gray hairs don't matter. It's wrinkles right matter, especially if they are around the eyes, and around the mouth.

The main thing is not to have wrinkles on your brain. Nor your heart.

As long as a man keeps going and jumps out of bed every morning with a smile, he is young.—Herbert N. Casson in Forbes Magazine.

Violin East and West

A leading music-house says: "We have no record of ever having heard of the Chinese making a violin, and the instruments made by the Japanese of the very cheap commercial quality. The violin took root in Japan during the World war, since the peace Germany and France have furnished practically all of the cheap instruments for America, and the Japanese are out of the picture. We have no records of any well-known Russian violins. However, the violin is an extremely popular instrument all through eastern Europe, and doubtless thousands of them have been constructed in Russia, and perhaps there are some good makers there. None of them, however, seems to have been outstanding."—Washington Star.

Art's Definition

Shakespeare had not art? He was bad by art? Compelled and held by it. And by that holding and compulsion we get a vision of what art is: not a system, not a set of rules which a genius might teach us, or another Greek, but a compelling, growing, form-compelling power that is individual, but at its greatest expresses an age. This was the great age of English, never repeated in its age of color, wealth, diction and power of words.—Henry Chester Tracy in "English as Experience."

The Foods We Eat

A commission man, "shopping" in New York city found spinach from Mexico, honeydew melons from South Africa, fresh almonds from the Philippines, new potatoes from Florida, green peas and asparagus from California, butter from Denmark, eggs from China, meats from New Zealand and Argentina.

That's what modern transportation and cold storage refrigeration does for us.—Copper's Weekly.

Down in Rio

That a Frenchman in a new country will open a cafe, a German a hotel, and a Briton a bank, is a long been an axiom regarding the habits of those races in foreign lands. It is regarding the Briton might be illustrated by stating that along with the Bank goes the Church of England. This is Rio, says a correspondent, where in a city of churches, an English church has been the meeting place for the British community for 110 years.

Singing Promotes Health

"If you want to be healthy sing as often as possible," advises a French doctor, who has experimented with cases of overexcitement and sympathetic nerves. He says that when patients were kept in a cheerful mood, singing gay music, the equilibrium of the nervous system was restored in a few weeks, and badly damaged appetites began to reappear with full force.

After 20 Years Stomach His Are Ended by Konjola

I tried everything, but new medicine gave me first and only relief.

MR. A. J. ROOT

"For twenty years my stomach was so bad that absolutely nothing gave me relief from indigestion," said Mr. A. J. Root, 210 N. First St., Ann Arbor, Mich. "After every meal gas formed and bloating and pain followed. Then my kidneys began to fail. At night I had to rise frequently. But I kept on doctoring trying this and that and I always met with failure."

"A friend told me by all means to give Konjola a trial. Four weeks on Konjola and all my health problems were solved. Today I can eat anything I like, my stomach is working as it should and kidney trouble is at an end. I am amazed that any one medicine could bring such results in so short a time. Whoever called Konjola the master medicine knew what he was talking about."

Konjola is sold in Grayling, Mich. at the Mac & Gidley drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Inside Information

Do you know Farmers' Bulletin 1530-E, "Fitting Dresses and Blouses?" It will help in your dressmaking problems.

Oysters, clams and other sea foods are among the best known sources of iodine among the common foods.

Iron rust stains on white materials often respond to lemon juice. Spread the stained place over a vessel of actively boiling water and then squeeze lemon juice on the stain. After a few minutes, rinse the fabric and repeat.

Try duck duck when you want a palatable, inexpensive baked meat. It's really a flank steak, stuffed with a bread crumb dressing, rolled, tied and baked. Be sure to roll it lengthwise so that in carving, the meat is cut across the muscle.

Bacon sandwiches out-of-doors can be made wherever one's picnic party happens to be. Each person can cook his own pieces over a fire in the woods with the aid of a forked stick. Many persons enjoy a leaf of crisp lettuce in a bacon sandwich.

Here's a good September menu: Corn soup, made from fresh corn cut from one cob; omelet with Spanish sauce, which contains tomatoes and peppers; rice; new yellow or white turnips; apple sauce from some of the first windfalls, with cup cake.

A simple remedy for a scorch stain is to moisten the stain with water and place in the sun. For more serious cases a piece of cloth moistened with hydrogen peroxide may be placed over the stain, covered with a dry cloth, and the spot ironed with a medium hot iron. If the hydrogen peroxide soaks through, replace the upper cloth. Be careful to see that the hydrogen peroxide does not touch the iron as it will cause it to rust very rapidly. Rinse the garment thus treated before ironing. This method must be used carefully in colored fabrics as the dyes may bleach out.

Armour Wins Western

Tommy Armour, link Scot from Tam of Shanter, emerged from the golfing edifice which had covered him since the summer of 1927 to stalk off the eighteen green at Augusta at Milwaukee, the possessor of the western open championship. Armour, with three of his four rounds under par, scored 274, which was less than his nearest competitor took.

Tomatoes—Economy—Beauty

EVERY housewife who keeps up with the market knows that canned tomatoes are among the bargains of the month. For they can be bought for less than ten cents a pound, canned, to say nothing of the saving of time which would be consumed in selecting, peeling and cooking fresh ones.

Hurray for Youth!

But does every housewife know that tomatoes have received a real endorsement from one who ought to know, as to their good influence on beauty? Edna Wallace Hopper, youthful at sixty-eight (or is it seventy?) asserts that it is the omnipresent tomato which has been largely responsible for her continued beauty and charm. But let her tell it as she recently did when she appeared in a theatre as reported by "The Optimist".

"I ascribe my retention of health and vigor and what I have of good looks," she told an admiring group of friends after the show, "to tomatoes. I eat vegetables of all sorts, but tomatoes lead the menu. Spinach is lovely, too, and carrots are divine. But tomatoes are best of all. You can eat them in any form, and they do you good. Canned ones are as good as fresh ones, too."

Now what more could any woman want? A combination of beauty and economy. What a chance to be both virtuous and beautiful!

HOW TO BUILD A HOME-MADE MASH FEEDER FOR POULTRY

THIS MASH HOPPER ALSO A FEED SAVER

Reel Prevents Fowls From Roosting Over It or Getting Into It.

A mash hopper with a reel which prevents fowls from roosting over or getting into it can be made at home, says the Blue Valley Creamery Institute in calling attention to a simple set of plans for this useful feed-saver. The type of feeder recently devised by the Kentucky College of Agriculture, is shown in the accompanying illustration. It is a simple affair, made of wood, and fits over a platform 18 inches high. A 6-inch board is placed across the top of the platform, and a place for the fowls to stand while eating. Diagram B shows the details of the construction of the turning reel. It is made of four thin but strong huts. A long, thin bolt, or two strong huts furnish the axis on which the reel turns when it is placed in the slots at the top of the high ends of the mash box.

Diagram C shows enough of the details of the construction to enable any rough carpenter or bright boy to construct the complete feeder. Whenever a fowl undertakes to step or roost up on the reel, it turns forward or backward at the slightest touch and therefore unbalances the hopper and makes her jump off. The purpose of the reel is to prevent the fowls from getting droppings into the feed.

The illustration of the reel hopper in use was drawn from a photograph made at the Kentucky College of Agriculture. It shows the feeder with a fowl on the reel. The hoppers are made of wood, and the reel is made of thin huts. The entire feeder is made according to the dimensions given above, and will hold ten pounds of mash feed.

THE BANK'S PART IN THE FARM PROBLEM

By H. LANE YOUNG
Member American Bankers Association
Agricultural Commission

ONE of the most discussed and least understood questions regarding the farmer's problems is the part the bank has played, or is to play, in financing the farmer. The basis of co-operation between the two, however, is a very simple one.

Both sides are subject to criticism for the condition that exists today. The major share of the blame rests on those banks that have failed through misapplying fundamental principles, or on those banks that have encouraged the farmer to expect bank loans without first putting his business on the earning basis which would justify a bank to lend him money.

One of the underlying reasons for the failure of so many country banks has been the existence of too many banks. With the limited business of the community divided among too many banks it was impossible for them to make enough money to justify the employment of officers with the proper ability to manage the bank successfully. Then the scramble for business was so hard that good judgment and foresight were forgotten in granting loans, with the resultant failure of the weaker institutions.

Some banks have not failed, but have lost the confidence of their depositors without the kind of security that can be immediately realized upon in case the loan is not paid, or unless the applicant presents a sound and successful record of business operation.

Whether the business be manufacturing, merchandising, or farming.

Farming—Banking—Interdependent. This is a perfectly obvious attitude, because country banking cannot be successfully and profitably carried on unless farming is successfully and profitably operated—the two businesses are dependent upon each other. There is no longer any question that the time has arrived for these interdependent businesses to reach a common ground of understanding of the requirements that both must meet for their mutual welfare.

There is no doubt but what the future prosperity of the farmer and the basis of co-operation between banker and farmer is the intelligent diversification of crops. It is necessary, however, to have the right conception of diversification.

The mistake that many farmers have made in attempting to diversify has been to invest too much money, time, and land in a new and untried crop, sometimes a hazardous crop, or one for which no immediate market has been developed, resulting in a loss of the initial effort and discouragement of future efforts on a more conservative basis.

Disregarding the primary and essential principle of farming, namely, to increase earnings by decreasing the cost of production through the practice of building up soil by crop rotation and intensive cultivation, is responsible for a large share of the farmer's trouble today.

As An Agriculturalist Sees Farm Board's Job

The new Agricultural Marketing Act approaches farm relief from a materially different point of view from that of former bills before Congress in recent years, says Dean H. L. Russell of Wisconsin University College of Agriculture in the American Bankers Association Journal.

It contains a new idea, fraught with the greatest possibilities—the organization of a Federal Farm Board. It has been possible for farm cooperatives to borrow from Federal aid institutions before, and at a materially lower rate than city business men had to pay for working capital, but this is the first step made by the government in which a commission has been carefully chosen to give undivided attention to an effort to solve the problems of a farm group.

It is hard to conceive of a higher degree of responsibility than must be assumed by this commission. No board ever created by congressional action has been clothed with as wide plenary powers. It is authorized not only to advise but to execute, to plan and to put its plans into effective action, to buy and sell for the government.

Federal treasury to accomplish its ends, with what would be without unlimited resources to any private commercial concern. The board's only job is to succeed, and no governmental agency ever during the war time emergency had a wider latitude.

"Many will think the farm relief program will be universally applicable to the individual land owner or operator. Such procedure is far from the case. Aid is to be extended through cooperative organizations by making it possible for such groups to obtain cash advances to hold crops so as to permit of more orderly marketing."

"While the primary relation is with co-operatives, the individual or unorganized farmer will also profit by the activities of his organized fellow. If a stabilized program of merchandising is able to eliminate the surpluses that exert such depressing influence on prices, the general price relation should be improved. If this occurs the individual farmer should also benefit."

It is the government's duty in proposing a novel attempt in economic stabilization—stabilization corporations for each commodity it is proposed to make possible the handling of the surplus crops to lessen its depressing influence on prices. With non-perishable products such a program is, of course, conceivably possible, but one wonders what would happen if a stabilization corporation had to handle a perishable crop in great quantities.

It is going to be possible for a stabilization corporation to stabilize? It would be one thing if it had merely to stabilize the American situation, but often that situation is complicated with world conditions. Perhaps the very fact that such a stabilization corporation is in position to function may have a steadying effect on the market.

"Markets" respond to psychological stimuli as do individuals. The very fact that the government has now definitely stepped into the breach with all of its resources available to make the new plan work will exert undoubtedly a strong stabilizing effect.

"It would be presumptuous to forecast what the ultimate effect of the new act will be. It can, however, be definitely stated that in the present plan much of the philosophy that had been so drastically criticized as economically unsound has been eliminated. The existing plan is worthy of it. It will undoubtedly be worth the Federal treasury out of considerable amounts of money, but if it produces the hoped-for result it will have been well worth while."

BANKING FINDS THE WAY TO SAFER ERA

By FRANK W. SIMMONDS,
American Bankers Association

In considering the banking situation throughout the country, the fact should be kept in mind that while one bank in ten failed during the past eight years, it is far more important that nine banks out of ten, operating in the same general field, serving the same communities and meeting almost identically the same problems, weathered the economic storm of readjustment successfully. This achievement cannot be ascribed to any element of luck, but rather to consistent adherence to sound banking principles and profitable practices.

Through worthy and efficient management they met the issues and problems confronting them, squarely and successfully. Banking is regarded as the keystone of our entire business structure, hence bank failures are rightly regarded as intolerable public calamities that must absolutely be prevented. The three major objectives of all inter-bank organizations, whether local, county, district, state or national, are to make banking safer for all concerned and, through increased efficiency in bank management and supervision, to lessen or eliminate all forms of losses so that greater rewards may accrue to banking and better service to the public.

There is definite evidence throughout the country of a strong and growing spirit of cooperation among bankers and banking organizations, which is resulting more and more in strengthening the work of all. Clearinghouse associations among banks in city, county or district group, undoubtedly constitute the chief line of defense against bad banking practices. They have demonstrated that they are the practical factors in bringing about improvements in banking methods and the observance of sound banking principles. For many years the primary purpose of a clearinghouse association was the clearance of checks, but today it is the clearance of banking ideas and the solution of banking problems. Clearinghouses supply the local machinery essential for setting up and putting in practice necessary standards and uniformities. There are now 435 clearinghouse associations in cities, towns, counties and groups of counties in the United States.

Men today are more intelligently group-minded than ever before. Banking is being the best element of competition with sound group action. By virtue of this combination, individual thought has much wider possibilities of expression. In general, group action has not suited—but has stimulated—individual thinking and initiative. Better inter-bank organization and relationships afforded by clearinghouses would have undoubtedly saved many institutions that have suffered failure in the past. The clearinghouse activities of the American Bankers Association are conducted for the purpose of encouraging ever widening cooperation among fundamental principles and practices among banks through clearinghouse associations.

Banks in every city, county or district can, through the agency of a clearinghouse, promote better, safer and more profitable banking and also serve their communities better.

There never was a time when successful bankers were so alert to the value of team work for putting the entire banking structure in prime condition. Sound bank management is the order of the day. Constructive cooperation is more than a sentiment, it is an economic necessity, a matter of enlightened self-interest, and successful bankers more and more are utilizing the agency of constructive group action in developing and establishing necessary standards and uniformities in banking practices. Such years of banking are becoming more of a science and attaining higher professional standards.

The Care of Your Money

PUBLIC UTILITY BONDS
Because of the universal need and use of the products of Public Utilities, well-made bonds issued by them are a good, safe security. As an authority aptly puts it: "Every one uses gas and electricity, either directly or indirectly. Most people have one or both in their homes. But, even though a man may not have them in his home, he probably works in a store or a factory which does have them, rides to work in an electric street car, and is constantly dependent in one way and another on the Public Utilities companies."

The better known Public Utility securities are the following:
Street Railway bonds
Gas bonds
Electric Light bonds
Water Company bonds
Power bonds

Telephone and Telegraph bonds. Selecting the ideal type of Public Utility investment requires study and shrewd judgment. The issuing of more and more holding company securities and the accompanying tendency toward overcapitalization are indeed complicating the Public Utility investment situation. Competition among various public utilities to secure control of certain territories has resulted in the payment of inflated prices by certain large holding organizations. "Watering of stocks" and overcapitalization have been the outcome, and dangerously so for the imprudent investor.

It is almost impossible in many instances to analyze satisfactorily the true condition of Public Utility subsidiaries. One rarely knows what is behind the securities of such corporations. However, Straus Brothers Investment Institute believes that there are many desirable Public Utility securities that offer an utmost to the conservative investor. Usually the bonds of operating companies are preferable to the collateral trust obligations of the holding company.

Some Public Utility bonds do not yield as high a return as other bonds equally as safe. Usually if the issue is a large one, such as the Commonwealth—Edison 4 1/2's of '04, the interest return is relatively low and the marketability high. But if the issue is a small one—such as those of many hydro-electric and street railway companies of small towns—the interest rate will be high and the marketability low.
